Office of International Activities

The UNC School of Medicine's Office of International Activities (OIA) supports, promotes, publicizes, and coordinates activities, accomplishments, and opportunities in global health and international medical education. Since 2012, the OIA has supported 119 resident physicians for their international rotations. The OIA awards $20,000 in global health elective scholarships each year. In addition, they offer a competitive two year Global Health Scholar program with $8000 funding. The OIA also collaborates with the Office and Occupational Health Services to pay, monitor, and administer pre-international travel vaccinations, on-site HIV PEP and treatment protocol for residents traveling on approved GH electives internationally.
